RIVER AND STEAMBOAT MATTERS.

The river was still rising slowly last evening with 7 feet 2 inches water in the canal by the mark and 5 feet 2 inches on the falls. The cold weather will, however, soon check the rise. Owing to it the repairs could not be made on Portland avenue, and the road was kept open for travel. As soon as a thaw sets in, it will however be closed. Arrangements are making to carry freight on the Portland railroad, and it is to be hoped that they will be perfected by the time the avenue road closes.

The Pacific -This magnificent steamer did not get off yesterday. She will leave this evening. Her accommodations are superb, while more gentlemanly officers than Capt. Jesse K. Bell, and the clerks, Messrs. Halliday and Carroll, are nowhere met with.

The A. M. Ruuyan .- This fine new steamer will also leave for New Orleans to-day. We can recommend passengers to Mr. Bell, her clerk, who is untiring in his attentions to passengers.

Steamer Imperial.-This large and magnificent steamer, now lying at the city wharf, between Fifth and Sixth, is rapidly approaching completion. She is without donbt one of the finest specimens of Western steamboat architecture, if not the finest ever built on our rivers. From stem to stem and from keel to pilot-house she is almost perfection. She has all the important improvements which render traveling not only safe and pleasant, but rapid and free from the many annoyances usually incident to it. Her freight capacity is unequaled in extent and strength, and the machinery for loading and unthe day. Capt. E. W. Gould, her owner and the two, and so on.

To each of the steam engine companies are eleven. To each of the steam engineer, one fireman, three loading is one of the most ingenious contrivances of of the result of his labors. Her cost cannot be less than $100,000. He has carried on this project successfully through one of the severest financial panics acts at and during a fire. Two hose reels also acthat has ever prevailed. The Imperial is now receiving the last finishing touches of the artizans and her splendid furniture is already being put on board. She will be ready to make her first trip during the coming week.

The Fanny Bullitt .- This steamer arrived from New Orleans yesterday with a large cargo. Messrs. Judge, her clerks, have our thanks for a copy of the manifest. The Fanny returns to New Orleans tomorrow evening. Capt. Dunham is her comman-

The Southerner .- Few boats have earned as high a reputation as the Southerner. It is not alone owing to her, but much of her popularity is attributable to her commander and chief clerk, Capt. Triplett and Mr. Archer. They use every exertion not only to render all comfortable, but leave nothing undone that can add to the pleasure of those who travel with them. One feels as safe on a steamboat with Triplett on the hurricane deck and Archer in the office as by his own fireside. The Southerner will leave for Memphis this evening. She will arrive at Portland at 10 o'clock this morning with a large party of gentlemen and ladies from this city and Memphis.

The John Briggs .- This excellent packet will leave for Henderson at her usual hour this evening. The Briggs provides well for her passengers and is in charge of gentlemanly officers.

THE MONEY MARKET .- Our bankers report the noney market as quier. The banks are taking all the prime 3 and 4 months' paper that is effered at their customary rates, but for that which is offered out of doors higher interest has been paid. Eastern exchange is dull at 1 premium and New Orleans firm at the same. The quotations for uncurrent money are now as follows: the notes of the old Tennessee banks 3 discount and of the free banks 31 discount; Indiana State bank par to 1/4 discount and the free banks 1/2 to 1 discount; Illinois free banks 4 discount, and Missouri bank 11/2 discount. Gold remains at 15 to 1 premium.

At New York money is a drug, First class paper rates from 4 to 6 discount. Stocks had again gone up to a high figure, but the leading funcies received severe check on Thursday. The movement suggested to abolish the paying of interest on deposit by the banks had proved a failure.

At Philadelphia, on Friday, there was an abundance of capital on the street seeking investment at 61/2017 P cent. for No. 1 paper, but second class was difficult to negotiate at 12 7 cent.

At New Orleans, negotiations for 12-month paper were made at 10@11 7 cent.

The president of the State Bank of Tennessee has addressed a letter to the Legislature, in answer to a joint resolution, that, though an increase of the caji'al is not necessary to the existence of the bank, yet it would result in great benefit to the people at large. He says the bank has furnished since the suspension a million of dollars in exchange at 1 premium and will do more. This does not correspond with the opinion entertained of the bank here. Some of our bankers have had remittances lying at Nashville for weeks, but they cannot get any return for

A DUEL -- We learn from an attentive correspondeut at Carlisle, Nicholas county, that much excitement prevailed in that village, caused by a challenge having been seut by Mr. II. M. Stitt, the post master at that place, and who is also one of the proprietors of the Nicholas House, to Mr. Josiah Bishop, late of the firm of Bishop & Mathers, of that place. The challenge had not been accepted at the time our correspondent closed his letter, but the general opinion was that it would be accepted before the end of the week. The difficulty is said to have grown out of a love affair.

THE CINCINNATI FIRE DEPARTMENT. To the Editors of the Louisville Journal:

GENTLEMEN: In conformity to a request made by a prominent citizen of your city and a concession of space in your Journal, I purpose briefly (as facts will permit) giving an account of our Steam Fire Eagine Department, its admirable workings, and general management. My letter would be entirely too prolix were 1 to give the many causes which originated the present department, but it may be proper in the start to say that the change may in a great degree be attributed to the riots which are always the offspring of a volunteer force.

The steam engine department of Cincinnali consists of seven steam engines and three hand companies, the whole being under the courrol of a chief and two assistant engineers. In the centre of the city stands the "watch tower," from which radiate four districts. On the tower two men are stationed, who stand regular watches night and day. The tower being built upon the top of the Mechanics' Institute, one of the highest structures, its elevated position gives it once a most commanding and perposition gives at once a most commanding and perfect view of the entire city. On the southwest corner of the Institute standathe "big bell," weighing over six thousand pounds. It is rung by means of a ponderous iron lever, to which are connected iron rods running from the tower and attaching with the clapper. The signals are inside of the tower, which are four large-sized glass globes placed at intervals of two to three feet on arms projecting from one inch gas pipe; the globes or balls are illuminated by means of gas, and can be plainly distinguished from any of the several engine houses in the city; the signals are raised from the summit of the tower by a powerful but simple windlass—one, two. three, or clapper. The signals are inside of the tower, which four being shown, as the case may be; if the fire company each engine; in proceeding to a fire one of the reels takes the lead of the engine, and the other follows immediately in the rear. To the rear carriage or reel is attached a small fuel wagon. better known in the department as the "dinkey." The front reel carries 1000, and the one behind 850 feet of three inch india rubber hose. Very few fires occur where it is necessary to lay out the entire length, but it is frequently expedient to connect Four large sized two separate lines to the engine. dranght horses are used as motive power to the large machines and three for the small ones. The horses are harnessed both night and day and only require to be bridled and hitched to the engine and all is ready. Regular watches are stood by the men at the different houses during the day, and at night one is appointed specially. When the look out on the tower espies a fire, he immediately sounds the alarm; the watchmen at the houses respond, and the horses are hitched up; so soon as the signals are hoisted or the big bell rings the second time, the district is communicated to the drivers, and they at a rapid pace proceed to the scene of conflagration. If on the other hand the look-out receives the alarm from a small bell, he rings once, this making the alarm general but does not beist this making the alarm general, but does not hoist the siguals or ring up the second time unless they see the fire or are assured that the flames are con-fined, which assurance is given by the watchman adjacent to the fire igniting a brilliant red light, easily discernible night or day.

Some idea may be gleaned from the above as to the efficiency of a paid department. That it is paramount in efficiency to the old system is undeniable; Cincinnati leads the van with steam engines, and the tendency of all large cities must be to the adonthe tendency of all large cities must be to the adoption of the system, being as it is the only safeguard against the "devouring element."

Foot, of Cornwall, Vt., writes as follows to the Vernont Stock Journal:

Mr. Mechi said it was 16 years since he began to drain. He had at tirst made his drains 12 feet apart and 2 feet 8 inches deep, on a very tenacious yellow clay. Subsequently he had drained other lands of the same character 4 and 5 feet deep and from 23 to 50 feet apart. After 10 years' practical experience his laborers told him they could always 1 low easier and work with one or two less harrowings on land drained 12 feet apart and 2 feet 8 inches deep than on land drained 4 or 5 feet deep at wider distances. on land drained 4 or 5 feet deep at wider distances. Owing to the ventilation of that soil, or to some circumstance which he could not explain there was an equality in the crops and an evenness in the yield that afforded unmistakable evidence of thorough drainage.

R. Baker had drained a field, partly with tile 30

R. Baker had drained a field, partly with tile 30 inches deep and 18 feet apart, partly 3 feet, and another part 4 feet deep, and no one could see any difference in the appearance or working of the soil.

Mr. Thomas, of Lidlington, said the discussions and his experience tended to two practical corclusions. One was that no depth could compensate in the case of homogeneous clavs for too great a distance between the drains. The other, that in the case of Sriable and springy soils they could hardly go too deen. He had often seen grass lands overdrained. What they wanted was that the land should be sufficiently dry for the cattle and at the same time sufficiently moist for the production of grasses, and that object was not always kept clearly in view.

Mr. Hatfield, of Euston House, Stamford, said he

Mr. Hatfield, of Euston House, Stamford, said he had had some experience in draining upon a retentive clay soil. At tirst put drains 30 inches deep, and afterwards increased the depth to 36 inches, and for 10 years had found that 36 inches would drain the ground most effectually, and had, therefore, adopted that depth as a standard for his drains. W. Bennett, of Cambridge, had farmed some of the strongest lands in England for a cousiderable portion of his life, and had found that drains from 15 to 21 feet, and from 2½ to 3 feet deep, were the most effective upon retentive soils.

Mr. Trethewy, of Silsoe, would not recommend deep or shallow draining, as a system. Three feet, or less, was called shallow draining, and more thau three feet, deep draining. His idea of draining was not only to get rid of the water, but also to act upon the sunface and substance of the soil as much as possible. In draining for grain and grass lands possible. In draining for grain and grass lands different objects were to be kept in view. In grass lands they wanted to keep up a continuous verdure, but that was not the case with arable lands, and he maintained that the latter needed to be more drained that the formers. ed than the former.

Mr. Wood, of Sussex, had the misfortune to farm that kind of soil which all would regard as a bona fike clay, and he had expended a good deal of money in draining land which would require 50 per cent. of sand to bring it to a fit state to make brick. When he commenced eight or ten years ago, 2 feet deep was advocated by one party, and 4 feet by another. Being of a prudent turn of mind, he thought he would adopt the middle course, and consequently made his drains 3 feet deep and 16½ feet apart. Found the soil furthest from the drains the most wet, and the soil and crops above the drains and nearest to them looked the best. If his drains were 8 feet apart he thought the change would be benefi-8 feet apart he thought the change would be beneficial. If he could make drains 4 feet deep at the same expense as 3 feet, would prefer that depth; but having regard to expense he would adhere to a depth

Mr. Shaw, of Northampton, felt no hesitation in aying that three drains 4 feet deep were more benesaying that three drains 4 feet deep were more beneticial than four drains at 3 feet.

Mr. Parkinson, of Nottinghamshire, had found from experience in draining that practice was far more valuable than theory. He worked a farm that was drained by his predecessor 30 years ago, with drains about 30 inches deep. The person who put them in was very much laughed at, at the time, for burying his money; but he persevered, and his neighbors first became convinced he was right in 1829, when he was the only person in the district that had not a rotten sheep. The land was a strong, tenacious clay, and was now as well drained as any land could be, even though it were drained 4 feet land could be, even though it were drained 4 feet eep.

Mons. Trehonnais, of France, considered the discussion very valuable from the fact that it represented different parts of England, with differences of geological formation and soil, while he appeared to represent France. On his farm in France, he was engaged in extensive draining operations last win-ter, particularly on hilly land. He was obliged to lay his drains across the dip of the land, having been taught by observation and experience that the practice of laying drains np the hill would not prove satisfactory.

C. M. Bidwell, of Ely, said they were nearly all progressing more and more towards 4 feet. He had seen a good deal of draining done at that depth and he did not know a single instance connected with strong clay lands in which experience was not in favor of a depth of 4 feet. He hoped that in a few years they would adopt a minimum of 4 feet. C. Stokes, of Kingston, had seen a good deal of draining in Nottingham, Leicester, and Derby. Did not know of a single failure at a depth of 4 feet.

When that system was first adopted by a few every-When that system was first adopted by a few every body laughed at it; now no one scarcely drained at a less depth. It was a great mistake to suppose that water would not percolate at that depth. Let the air get into the land and that will make a way for the water. With regard to what had been said by Mr. Thomas about the over-draining of grass lands, be fully submitted that for a year or two grass lands. he fully admitted that for a year or two grass lands might appear to have been over-drained, the water having been taken away that produced a coarse kind of grass. The remedy for this, however, was mantre, and the advantage of draining would soon be visible in the production of grasses of a better de-

At the close of the discussion the following resolution was unanimously adopted: "That in draining land no depth of the drains can compensate for too great width of the intervals; that porous soils should be drained at depths and intervals suitable to their respective characters; but that retentive clays require drains at more moderate depths and distances. FEEDING FARM HORSES -[Premium Essay for

Fending Farm Horses—[Premium Essay for the Virginia State Agricultural Society, by W. C. Knight, of Nottoway.]
Four years ago, being scarce of provender—having for a large portion of the year nothing but wheat straw and cornshucks, neither of which my horses would eat kindly in their ordinary state—I determined to use meal instead of the unground corn. The shucks and straw were cut up with a good straw-cutter and thoroughly dampened with salt-water, and, after placing a sufficient quantity of provender in each horses' trongen, a half gallon of meal was sprinkled over it. Wren I sav meal, I do not mean fige meal, such as the millers will take half tell for. I found, from close observation, that the coarse was nont Stock Journal:

D. C. Lindey, Eag: Permit me to give vou my experience in breaking a vicious horse to ride. In my younger days I was importanted by a friend to take a seven years old mare to break to ride, which several had tried to do but had failed, as she had thrown every one who had mounted her. I consented to give her a trial. Before mounting, I took a stout cord and passed it ground her ordy just back of her fore legs, drawing it pretty song atd a making it fast. I then put a cord in like manner around her neck, and tied the cords together between her fore legs, and also on her withers. The coulding of the cords on "he withers makes an excellent place to hold out ow'i so ee hand, and very much assists the rider to retain his seat. Thus equipped, I mounted her. She made two or three attempts to part company with me, but, not succeeding, gave up, company with me but, not succeeding, gave up, company with me, but, not succeeding, and making and pitching without expanding the body, which causes the cords to cut into the flesh, and luttes so bad that they will not, generally, make more than two or three trials before they give it np.

Club by men who, it addition to excellent opportunities for observation, freely gave their expectance.

Mr. Mechi sa of cora cossumed by my horses was known to the bashel. I have continued this method of feeding (wheat and oat saraw, and cora shucks with meal) for four years, and my teams have always been in excellent condition, notwithstanding there has been scarcely a day (Sundays excepted) when they have not been in the plow or wagon. I have found too that a meal made of one measure of cora and two of clean oats results in a still further saving of grain, and greatly cheapens the cost of feeding. It has, cousequently, been by practice never to feed oats in the sheaf, but to thresh out the grain and use the straw as cut-stuff. The quantity of meal from these mixed grains, which I have found sufficient to keep a lorse in good condition under hard work, is tree galons a day, to be given as follows: Half a gallon at the morning and mid-day feeding and one gallon at night. The cost, therefore, of the grain for one horse per day (nutting corn at one do'lar the bushel and oats at fifty cents) sixteen and two-third cents. The saving, as compared with the usual most or feeding corn in the ear, can now readity be seen. I believe it is generally conceded that a horse cannot perform hard work with less than ten ears at a feed, which makes thirty ears per day. Taking 110 ears to the bushel, we have the day's feed equal to 3.66 parts of a bushel, which is equivalent to 28 cents; thus making a saving of 11½ cents per day, or $41.36 per each horse yer year. These figures may be relied on as correct. The quantity of grain consumed is a matter of record in my mill book, and the method of feeding has been pursued for fouryears, and during this time I may put down in round numbers the average amount of grain consumed by each horse at five barrels of corn and lifty bushels of oats, and the aurual cost at $40. The whole result, then, of these experiments, and my corrobof oats, and the annual cost at $40. The whole result, then, of these experiments, and my corroborating experience is, that by gridding corn alone and using it with the cut stuff in the manner designated there is a saving in grain of $3\% per cent.; and, by making a meal of corn and osts together, there is a saving in cost of 50 per cent. in grain. EFFECT OF DEPTH OF SOIL ON VEGETATION -

EFFECT OF DEPTH OF SOIL ON VEGETATION—
The deeper a soil is or can be made by good tillage, provided it contains the elements of tertility, the more productive it must become, not only by causing a large supply of actual food, but also by presenting an increased surface for the action of chemical forces to retain those valuable substances which, being in solution, would otherwise pass away in the subsoil, where, though they might be retained, the roots could not get at them. The atmosphere penetrates more freely, warming and exciting the whola roots could not get at them. The atmosphere penetrates more freely, warming and exciting the whols mass; the roots, instead of merely throwing out laterally and creeping along just beneath the surface, as in shallow soils, push boildly ont in all directions in search of food, and thus strengthen the plant. The alluvial tracts so frequently found along our principal rivers are all deep and very fertile; though generally dry they seldom suffer from drought, owing to their powers of absorption, both from the air and sulsoil. Depth being so important, we should do all in our power to increase it by artificial means when required; as frequent plowing at a uniform depth produces, even in the deepest soils, a hard bed, through which ueither roots, air, puch which neit uor moisture cau readily penetrate, the use of the subsoil plow once in three or four years is strongly recommended. Where the subsoil consists of a stiff yellow clay, care must be taken not to bring up too much at once; for else, being sometimes of a poisonous nature, it might tend to injure the land for some length of time; until in fact the oxygen of the air had effected the necessary chemical changes and sweetened the mass. Deep soils are much less injured by sudden changes of weather than shallow ones; for being open and friable, the rain-fall passes slowly through them, and after nourishing vegetation by the moisture and ammonia that it leaves, disappears in the subsoil; and during a dry time they maintain their moisture, owing to their powers of absorption and capillary attraction. Many of the most fertile loams, resting upon a gravelly and very porous subsoil, owe their fertility to their depth. The same rule holds good with soils resting on limestone; they are rich or poor, according to depth. Therefore it is evident that in farming, besides the mere routine of preparing the ground for the crop, we have the important business of deepening the ground to attend to. Draining, in all cases where the land requires it, will be found a most important assistant, lowering the water level to the bottom of the drains some three or four feet from the surface enabling the atmosphere, that great fertilizer, to penetrate into the crevices formerly filled with excess of moisture, and by diminishing the tenacity, lessening the dilliculties of deep cultivation.—John Coleman's Prize Essay, in Transactions of Royal Ag. Society of England.

THE APOTHEOSIS OF ASSASSINS .- A meeting of a very extraordinary character was held in New York on Wednesday evening, the occasion being the commemoration of the French revolution of 1848. The attendance was very numerous, all the principal foreign refugees in the city being present. Speeches were made eulogising the persons who attempted to assassinate the Emperor Napoleon, and these sentiments were received with tremendous applause. Citizen Lesline presided, and in the course of a speech against despots and despotism, said they had resolved to make an open declaration of their principles. The usual blood and thunder denunciations were uttered against some imagined tyrant, who, of course, was not there. Murder was held up as the duty of every "patriot," and the butcher who recently jeopardized the lives of numberless innocent persons, for the purpose of gratifying his heartless malice, was held up as little less than a demi-god. One of the speakers said the noise in the Rue Lepelletier was a signal of the downfall of the fortress of tyranny, and that the attempt of Felice Orsini was not at all a failure; and finished with the cry of "Vive Orsini," which was received with vehement applause. On Sunday next, all the foreign refugees of New York are to unite in celebrating the anniversary of the German revolution.

THE PRESS IN FRANCE.—The press in France has a delightful time of it. The journals are suspended when they say anything unpalatable to the Emperor, and they are interdicted when they keep silent upon subjects which he wishes them to discuss in the way pleasing to himself. One newspaper has just been interdicted because it did not denounce the assassins who attempted the Emperor's life. This is one step in despotism a little further than any other ruler has dared to attempt.

OVERLAND MAIL-ROUTE TO CALIFORNIA. Postmater-General has recently addressed a very important and interesting letter to the chairman of the Post-office Committee of the House of Representatives in regard to the best overland mailroute to California. The two points which are most route to Carnornia. The two points which are most particularly dwelt upon in this letter are in reference to the effort now being made to reject the route having Memphis as its starting point, and in reference to the expediency of having the Pacific railroad follow the line marked out for the overland mail-

In the opinion of the Postmaster General, the whole effort to overturn the present established ronte is intended to abrogate the route from Memronte is intended to abrogate the route from Memphis altegether, and to have but one starting point, and that at St. Louis, and but one line running through that State, and passing out of it into the Indian Territory, or into Kansas. This is the true struggle now being made to abolish the Memphis route altogether, and to monopolize the starting point at St. Louis, and thence to run it off through the entire length of Missouri, east and west.

In regard to the Pacific railroad, the letter suggests, in conclusion, that, if the establishment of the overland mail route is to pioneer the way of the fu-overland mail route is to pioneer the way of the fu-ture railroad, it is every way desirable to pass from Fort Smith still further south on the Preston and El Paso ronte. He remarks that it is vain and idle to pretend not to see that it is the effort of rival rail-road interests that are now assailing the line of mail stage coaches which the vepartment has es-

The Postmaster General is, therefore, not only authorized but constrained to consider the subject, in some slight degree, in the further aspect of a future railroad. In this light he refers to the fact that the very shortest distance anywhere to be found between existing States is on the El Paso route. From the vestern boundary of Texas, on the Rio Grande, to Fort Yuma, the western boundary of California, is only about 460 or 470 miles. On no other roate is the distance through United States lands or territory, by several hundred miles, so short. Four hundred and sixty or seventy miles is, therefore, the whole distance that the United States would be called on to make the railroad outside of existing States.

A New Game.—A small piece of stick is lighted at one end, and the blaze is blown out, leaving the sparks. It is then passed from one of the company to the next on his right hand, and so on round the circle and the company to the next on his right hand, and so on round ny to the next on his right hand, and so on round the circle, each one saying, as he hands it to his neighbor, "Jack's Alive." The playor who holds the stick when the last spark dies out must consent to have a delicate moustache painted on his face with the charred end of the stick, which is then relighted, and the game goes on. Should the wearer of the moustache have Jack die a second wearer of the mouetache have Jack die a second time on his hands, an imperial, whiskers, or exaggerated eyebrowa may be added to his charms. While Jack is in a lively condition, with his syarks in fine brilliant order, he is passed carelessly from one player to another; hut when he shows symptoms of dying, it is amusing to see how rapidly he changes hands, for each player is bound to receive him as soon as his neighbor preparence. ceive him as soon as his neighbor pronounces "Jack's Alive." In case the moustache decorations are objected to, a forfeit may be paid instead, by those who hold "Jack dead."

GAS METERS.—Public attention is now attracted in Baltimore and other cities to gas meters and everincreasing gas bills. Rob't Prince, of Brooklyn, in a published communication, asserts that all the meters made in that city for the gas companies are decimally constructed to indicate signedly constructed to indicate a consumption of about fifteen per cent. of gas greater than the real amount. Some years ago be became interested with a manufacturer of gas meters, which were made with indexes that truly indicated the amount consumed, but the gas companies would not purchase these, consequently the manufacturer was obliged to give up the business or attach false indexes to his meters. He now works to the order of these com-

Roadside Trees .- It was recently suggested that parishes might derive a revenue from the cultivation of chestnuts on the roadsides, starch being made from them. Mr. A. Bach, in a letter to the Journal of the Society of Arts, says: "In many parts of Germany the communes of villages derive large profits from this kind of property planted along the sides of the highroads." He adds that railway companies might profitably plant the sides of their lines.

Ocean Steam Navigation—Depression of United States
Interests in the Same—Collins Line Failed—Steam
Line Projects—Norfolk and Nantes Line.

1 Wasmington, Feb. 25. The depression of the American interests in steam navigation, between this country and Europe, had commenced prior to the recent commercial revuision; and is likely to continue. The Government contract with the Bremen line had expired, and was not renewed. The Collins line, having lost their increased allowances, became embarrassed. Its service was diminished as to number of trips, and finally it has been entirely discontinued, even before the expiration of the term of the original contract for transporting the mails. The line has not been profitable The depression of the American interests in steam porting the mails. The line has not been profitable to its owners and projectors, owing to a series of unlucky circumstances. It lost two skips at sea, and met a still heavier loss, through the expeuse and delay occasioned by mistakes in experimental machinery.

Finally, a part of their compensation, omounting the level one handed and lifty thousand deliars, was ringly, a part of their compensation, omouting to about one hundred and lifty thousand dollars, was withheld from them, under a decision of the late Administration, and can only be recovered through the Court of Claims and Congress. Again, the company is heavily in debt, owing nearly three quarters of a million for advances by the house of thems. Parking Co. Co. An agent, Capt. West, has pro-ceeded to St. Petersburg to offer them to the Russian

All the efforts, backed by Northern and Western York, and from Savannah to Brazil, and between Panama and Valparaiso, failed last year, even in the palmy days of speculation, for the reason that Congress refused to grant a small subside, by way of contracts for mail transportation.

The disposition of the present Congress is not believed to be better, though there is no doubt that the President, Mr. Buchanan, is much more favorable to American interests, in this respect, than his predecessor. Moreover, the state of the treasury is an obstacle to the continued payments on account of ocean mail service; and the vast expenses which we are to encounter by protracted wars in the interior, whether with the Kausas or Utah people or the luwhether with the Kausas or Utah people or the ludians, is likely to involve the country in a heavy debt. Neither is the present condition of trade such as to commend to capitalists large investments in steamships. By the last arrival from Liverpool, we learn that the European and American Steam Company (Crosby's Southhampton line) had lost money in the operations of the New York line, owing to the late depression of trade with the United States; but the directors, it is stated, hope the service may be renewed with profit this spring.

renewed with profit this spring.

The contemplated steam line between Norfolk and Nantes, in France, can, it is believed, be sustained, if it be commenced, and if it receive aid from the government for postal service to the moderate ex-tent of $12,500 per round trip. The number of trips yearly is to be twenty-four. If this small sub-sidy from the government is all that is necessary to he obtained for the purpose of securing the great national benefits that are to result from this enterprise, there is no doubt that it will be granted. After the liberal subsidies which were granted by Congress to lines from New York, it would be a grierance, indeed, if Congress did not extend com-paratively small aid to the Norfolk line. The coun-try lost nothing by the payments from the treasury to the Collins line, the Brenen and Havre lines, &c. On the contrary, they gave a stimulus to commerce which brought into the treasury, in the revenue, five times as much as they ever received upon it.

The revenue is derived from commerce, and it is reasonable that a portion of it should be appropriated for the promotion of commerce. The Virginians are on the right track, and it is hoped they will not step backward. It is not Nortolk, nor Virginia, but it is the Chesapeake hay and all its tributaries that its to furnish compares for the Norfolk and Vantes. is to furnish commerce for the Norfolk and Nantes

SINGULAR CASE UNDER THE NEW ENGLISH DI-VORCE ACT.—An application was recently made before the Mayor of Exeter, England, on behalf of Mrs. Catharine Bond, under the 20th and 21st of Victoria, chap. 85 (the new divorce act), for an order to protect her property against her husband and his creditors. The clause in question provides that a wife deserted by her husband might at any time after such desertion apply to the justices in petty sessions for an order to protect any property which she might acquire after the desertion, provided that the justices are satisfied that such desertion was made without reasonable cause. Mrs. Bond was married in 1826; in 1853 her husband deserted ber, and she did not hear anything of him for nearly five years, until last June, when he came to her house at Exerer, and, being wholly destitute, she allowed him to sleep under her roof and to take his meals in the kitchen. During the five years he was absent she had maintained herself by letting furnished lodgings, and had acquired the means of keeping herself respectably.

The husband had, during this time, married another woman at Bristol, and he is now in Exeter jail on a charge of bigamy. Mrs. Bond's solicitor said that ste had been applied to for payment of her husband's debts, and if an order of protection were not granted there was reason to believe that many the similar applications would be made. He constituted the said of the other similar applications would be made. He con-tended that the husband of the applicant had committed a voluntary act in marrying another woman, by which he was taken away from his wife, and that

The Mayor, however, held, that although the husfor fiv had, by returning to her again, and by being re-ceived by her into her house, freed binnself from the charge of the permanent desertion provided by the act. He further held, that the husband's being in custody of the law on a criminal charge, of which he had not yet been proved to be guilty, was no desertion. If, however, Bond was convicted (as there is every reason to believe he will be), then his wife could obtain protection under the act. The order was therefore refused, but the Mayor expressed his regret at being obliged to withhold protection, as the case was one of a gross and painful nature.

AN EXTRAORDINARY CASE,—We were recently shown a private letter from Elizabethtown, N. J. shown a private letter from Elizabethlown, A. J., which stated that a German beggar woman, who had for years subsisted upon the private charity of the public, which she gained by her squallid poverty and apparent necessities, recently died, and an examination was made of her effects. To the astonishment of all, there was found among them ten or twelve thousand dollars in excellent bonds and more received the state of proporty. and mortgages upon the best of property—all of which was available cash. This miserable creature which was available cash. This miserable creature had been saving and investing the proceeds of her beggary, except that which was necessary to save her from starvation, until it had attained this very respectable sum. What a strange passion is avarice! Here the woman had attained enough to support her comfortably during the remainder of her life, but the desire of getting more, and the force of habit, prevented her from making use of it, and she lived as if she did not possess it. Leaving no heirs, the money will revert to the town or city in which she lived. Such cases sometimes occur in Europe; but they are very rare in America. Europe; but they are very rare in America.

No Man can Borrow Himself out of Debt.—If you wish for relief you must work for it, economize for it. You must make more and spend less than you did while you were running in debt. You must wear homespun instead of broadcloth, drink water instead of champagne, and rise at four instead of productive frugality, and economy. aeven. Industry, frugality, and economy—these are the handmaids of wealth, and the sure sources of relief. A dollar earned is worth ten borrowed, and a dollar saved is better than forty times its amount in useless gewgaws. Try our scheme and see if it is not worth a thousand banks and valuation laws.—Philadelphia Argus.

During the last Presidential campaign, in Pennsylvania, a Western orator opposed to Mr. Buchanan came down upon him very severely. Says he, "he is a tolerable good man so fur as intellec' is concerned; he has a good mind and a clear judgment, but he hain't got no heart—narry a bit of in'ards of that 'ere kind."

DEPLORABLE STATE OF THE KINGDOM OF NAPLES.—The London papers draw a fearful sketch of the internal condition of Niples. The Times's correspondent-says: "Among the curses of this country are the practice of secret denunciation; and the dependence of the judicial bench," After describing the arrest and incarceration, the liberation and rearrest of several prisoners, he says: "The process was brought before the Grand Criminal Court of Avellino, and the judges unanimously gave their verdict in the words, "Non consta." The men were acquitted. Now, mark the consequences The court has been thoroughly changed, and the judge o Montesarchio has been removed from his post. "This is but one of several cases of the kind.

The mayor of the province of Busilicata reported that during the repeated shocks eight numbred prisoners, mest of who n were unconvicted, were in a state of terror, as their crazy prison threatered to fall and bury them in its ruins. "It is impossible," says the mayor, in an official report to the Minister of the Interior, dated official report to the Minister of the Interior, dated December 18, "to describe the confusion which reigned—fear, cries of desparation, endeavors to escape, prayers, tears, and blasphemy; such was the scene I met. In order to maintain order, the guard fired on the prisoners, but with powder only. To restore confidence and tranquillity, I assured the prisoners that I would remove them from those quarters of the building which the shock had rendered dangerous. I gave this assurance in the name of the king, our august master." of the king, our august master.

of the king, our august master."

In answer to this distressing report Bianchiori replied in a cruel and jesuitical fashion. He said: "I have placed your report before our august sovereign. His Majesty appeared protoundly moved as I read your report. He directed me to convey his approval of the measures you had taken. As for any hing further, His Majesty, you may be assured, is aware of the situation your report explains." But even worse remains to be to'd. On the 29th December another earthquake occurred, and 30,000 men, women, and children perished in the 29th December another earthquake occurred, and 30,000 men, women, and children perished in the province of Basilicata. The same mayor asked for surgical aid on behalf of the inhabitants; 4,000 amputation cases awaited their arrival. Sixty surgeons offered their services, but perhaps being por, asked that their expenses might be paid, which His Majesty declined, and the poor creatures were suffered to die for want of aid that could be so cheaply rendered. The same terrible report adds that 250,000 persons were rendered houseless by this earthquake, and 100 died each day from want of 100 died each day from want of

The Times's correspondent says: "Since writing to you I have seen reveral gentlemen who have returned from the country which has recently been devastated by the earthquake. They had passed nearly a fortnight in wandering from one place to another, and the information which they bring back is of the deepest and most painful interest. Accord-ing to them the shocks continued throughout the entire district to the number of five or six a day. entire district to the number of five or six a day, sometimes tolerably strong, and generally occasioning the fall of many of the ruined houses. The hair-breadth escapes which they had are rather a matter for private narrative, but they much heighten the color of the terrible picture they draw. Their trip was exteuded far beyond Polla, and into the very center of volcanic action, as Potenza, Briensa, Tito, and many other places of mournful celebrity. The scene of desolation was beyond the power of description. description.

stroy; the few houses that remained standing were insecure, and one would have said uninhabitable, but that the people in their misery still clung like rooks to their falling habitations. The country in many parts still gaped with wide fissures of the breadth of two arms, and when they had closed had done so nnequally, one side being many feet higher than the other. Some of the incidents which they relate seem more like fables than facts.

Mules had also heen dug out alive after 21 days' burial. One of the monks told my informants that on the night of the 16th nlt. the shock was so violent as to throw him out of his bed through the window into the garden of the monastery. At Veggaino, a poor woman had lost her husband and two children beneath the ruins; two yet survived, but they quickly died of hunger, and the wretched mother banged herself. Tales of wonderful and tragic interest abound, and if the reader doubts their possibility he has only to read Colleta's graphic description of the earthquake of 1753.

description of the earthquake of 1753.

The people had not settled down to anything like regular occupation, but were grubbing among the ruins for whatever they could find and seeking for the lodies of their friends, of whom hundreds still remain as yet disinterred. Supplies were slowly coming in for the roor respile but roads there were coming in for the poor people, but roads there were scarcely any, and much had to be transported on the backs of mules. The province of Basilicata is the largest in the kingdom, and yet has not more than one carriage road through it of any importance. Potenza will not be rebuilt on the same site on which it stood, hut perhaps lower down in the plain.

After several meetings, much discussion, and more unpleasantness, the English have obtained permission to contribute the funds which they have collected for the relief of the sufferers by the earthquake.

MRS. MANSFIELD'S MEDICAL EXAMINATIONS.—It is a peculiarity of Mrs. Mansfield's examinations that she not only learns precisely the disordered condition of the system but also traces the causes of disease in the nature and component elements of the blood; and it is by remedies adapted to removal of these varying causes, thus accurately and minntely learned, that she has been enabled to effect the curative results which have taken so much interest and won her so many expressions of gratitude and valuable tokens of grateful remembrance. In consequence of unpleasant weather yesterday for some invalids to visit her, she will remain at the Galt Honse until Friday.

To THE LADIES. - We would state that G. B. Tabb, corner of Fourth and Market streets, has received a large and varied stock of spring and summer dry goods. He has received all the novelties and new styles, and is now offering a stock of goods that, in point of beauty, elegance, and variety, he feels guaranteed in the assertion that it cannot be surpassed in any of the Western cities. He has received a style of robe, both silk and organdie, that has not been introduced any former season. He has also received an assortment of barege robes, challytelle, bayadere, queen's cloth, plain jaconet, chintz, brillianteen, kid gloves, lace sets and collars, organdie muslins, plain de laines, and in fact every article, fancy and domestic, that is requisite for a dry goods store.

EVENING BULLETIN.

HENRY FEMALE COLLEGE. - We publish below an extract from a letter addressed to us from the seat of this flourishing institution by a lady who was present at one of those tasteful exhibitions which form so useful and attractive a feature of its Academical proceedings. We are quite confident that our fair correspondent has not overdrawn the picture:

preceedings. We are quite confident that our fair correspondent has not overdrawn the picture:

Among other wondrous sights stands pre-eminent the acconcert and exhibition given by the primary department of Henry Female College. I would be glad to give you at least a climinering of the treat prepared for us.

At seven oclock we found ourselves in the cheerful college hall stready filled by an expectant audience. With the times of indifference, and we confess it of patient endurance under the infliction, we settled down for the evening. We were aroused to somethin of interest in the school by the tastefut decorations of the hall. The walls were liberally covered with splendid maps and choice engravings. So little attention is given in our seminaries and colleges to the calification of a taste for works of beamy either in nature or in art, so little training is given to the imagination, that we were delighted, and that it un os mail measure, to find here it our State, and hear enough this beautiful tip to be claimed as our own, a fourtishing female college where young ladies were taught not merely dry abstractions and superficial accomplishments but the deeper lore of the heart which finds beauty in everything God has created, from the simple blade of grass beneath our feet to the glorious gene-sprinkled heavens above—where young ladies were trained to minde in a harmonious whole the poetry with the prose of life, the flowers with the thorus.

Beholding around us the evidence of such taste and refinement we were in some decree prepared for the wonderful performance of these little ones. Hut to relate in detail all that was said and done would fill a volume and then not obtain credence.

Indeed, as the sparkling creatures danced in and out before us, we tell like pinching ourself to see whether It was lord in their movements. We felt it was good for me to be here with these little ones.

The brilliantly lighted, beautifully decorated room—the animated faces of the andence—the eactivation and of children were purit

Senate.—The Kansas bill was taken up.

Mr. Green gave notice of a substitute for the admission of Kansas and Minnesota together, hoping thereby to expedite business. He then proceeded to advente the report of the counnitiee, remarking that the leading and controling facts of that document could not be successfully controverted. An attempt had been made in the minority report to evade some of them, but they stood unassailed. He then passed to a personal explanation touching the then passed to a personal explanation touching the statements with regard to the action of the commit-tee, published in the New York Tritune, which as-serted that the majority of the committee made a positive promise to Messrs. Douglas and Collamer not to report till the succeeding Monday, and subsequently violated that agreement. He proceeded to show the falsity of this statement by a detail of facts in the constitution.

A discussion of some length ensued between Green and Douglas, when the former proceeded:

He said he had a substitute for the bill reported by the majority of the committee, which he would offer at the proper time. This substitute provided for the admission of Kansas and Minnesota together, the object being to expedite business before the Sentence with other important constitutes with the other important constitutes with the other important constitutes. the object being to expedite lusiness before the Senate so that other importont questions might come up for consideration. He then argued the legality of the Kansas constitution, contending that it was republican in form, and was the legal choice of the people. The population of kansas is sufficient to entitle her to one representative, and the constitution of the United States prescribes no specific number of inhabitants. He referred to the unsettled state of the Territory as a powerful and overwhelming nearch for admission, for it would restore peace and quiet. He had received information to-day of murder by the pattern exposed to the Lecompton constitution, and form Whitfield had been driven from the Territory under threats of assassination. This, he said, was the reason of the absence of the dederal officers from Kansas. It is useless to cry "peace," when there will be none until Kansas comes

Mr. Collamer followed. He referred to the Mis-Mr. Collamer followed. He referred to the Missouri compromise as having settled slavery agisation—being a fair bargain he thought it unjust in the South, after receiving her portion of advantage, to repudiate the compact. Whe believed, he asked, in 1854 that slavery would exist in Kausas? It was a well settled principle that the power to regulate implied power to prohibit, quoting instances to show where this power had been exercised and referring to a case in Mississippi in 1796 in point. He detanded emigration societies denying that amigrants. tended emigration societies, denving that emigrants from the North went to Kansas merely to vote, with-out designing to stay there. He referred to fraudout designing to stay there. He referred to fraudulent electrons, carried by interlopers from Missouri and to other gross outrages into which the Government had never examined.

PHILADELPHIA, March 1.

The Washington Union says that the Senate have, by a very large and decisive majority, defeated the proposition for an increase of the United States army. The Commanding General of the army asks for additional troops—the Secretary of War concurs fully in the demand, and the President urges it upon Congress as a matter of necessity. The Senate say no, and the Senate have a right to speak. The Executive has done his whole duty; the responsibility rests with the Senate for refusing troops to defend our frontiers against herdes of savages known to be under Mormon influence and to be exhibiting symptoms of general and decided hostility to our people. The Senate take also the responsibility of jeopardising the campaign against the rebellious Mormons; this, 100, the Senate have a right to do, and the peoright to know that it assumes the responlibility of the act.

Gen. Whitfield, in a letter received to-day, says Lane's party has served upon him a notice to quit, threatening unless he does so to assassinate him. He has sent his family out of Kansas. LIVE AND DRESSED WEIGHT OF ANIMALS .- YOU will greatly oldige farmers by publishing the fol-lowing Rules relating to weights and prices of stock; they are so plain that every farmer can understand them. Rule —Divide the price per hundred gross by the decimal 8 tenths, and the quotient will be the price per hundred net, and vice versa.

Thus it will be seen that $3.40 gross, is the same as $4.25 n.t. The reasons for these are obvious, comment is therefore unnecessary.

New Books! New Books!

Just received and for sale by A. DAVIDSON, j20 j&b Third st., near Market.

We would respectfully call the attention of the public to a MARINE CHIRONOMETER placed in our window, showing the exact time. It is entirely of the World's Fair in Paris in competition with the best London and French Chronometer, and has been exhibited at the World's Fair in New York, and in every instance has received the highest premium for unequalled workmansbip and correct time-keeping.

To our watch department we have secured the services of Mr. Ed. Helwig, of New York. Mr. H. can execute any kind of watch-work fully equal to Jurgensen, Frodsham, Adams, or any of the first London or swiss makers.

In many fine Watches that are broken, parts are substituted greatly inferior to the original, the customer paying the full trice for a perfect piece of work. The Watch apparently performs well alterward for a while, but is more imperfect and less valuable than originally.
